LONDON, Feb. 14.—A seaman belonging board a Spanish steamer that arrived in the Thames two days ago was arrested this morning on suspicion of being "Jack, the Ripper." His clothes were covered with blood and the police are now certain that they have at last captured the notorious criminal.

He was seen in the company of the murdered woman, "Carroty Nell," or "Frances Coleman," as she has been called. It appears that the Parker was abandoned, a hopeless wreck in midocean, on January 26, during a frightful storm, and the captain. Lewis Lee, his wife and the crew of six were saved by means of a life boat. Consul Sherman spoke in the highest terms of the courage shown by the rescuers in their dangerous work and added that it would be his duty and pleasure to place the facts fully before the government at Washington with a recommendation that a suitable testimonial be presented through the proper channel to Capt. sented through the proper channel to Capt. NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The stock market this norning gave no signs of getting out of the rut transactions for the first hour were the smallest for that period of any day so far this year. An opening inclined to heaviness was followed by a firm to strong tone, but the trading was so limited that only in two or three stocks was there any perceptible movement. Among the railroad stocks Louisville and Nashville, which during the past few days has been unduly depressed, was the only one displaying any real strength, and after an advance of 4 percent, to 75, a portion of the improvement was lost. The industrials were the weak spot in the market, and distillers and cattle feeders again dropped sharply from 44½ to 43, but new sugar stocks after a decline of % recovered the loss entirely with something in addition. The rest of the market was int usely dull, and at 11 o'clock was generally a shade better than the opening prices.

Money has been easy at 2½ per cent. There was more animation in the regular list in the stock market after 11 o'clock and the firmness became more pronounced, while a few stocks scored material improvement, the Susquehanna and Western being the most conspicuous, with a rise from 37½ to 39½, the best price yet attained.

Later there was a renewal of the stagnation and even some reaction, though the bank state ment did not bear out the expectations as to its unfavorable character. The market finally closed dull and steady, generally at something better than for first prices.

In the opinion of some level-headed observer In the opinion of some level-headed observers there is one thing which democrate, especially those of the south, have lost sight of in discussing the Cleveland silver letter. It is suggested that when they come to look the matter over carefully and calmly they will probably come to the conclusion that in this, as in many other things, Mr. Cleveland has shown himself to be a very shrewd politician. They will probably conclude at the same time that they have been a little hasty in declaring that he has no chance of receiving the nomination of the chance of receiving the nomination of the democratic party in 1892. At the last election the democrate made gains in the east as well as in the west. In the west the victory was associated with the Farmers' Alliance movement and was not entirely a democratic victory. It was in part the victory of the alliance and does not give assurance of support for the democrats in that section.

A SHREWD POLITICIAN.

That's What Some Cool-Headed Politicians

In the east the democrats made the fight in support of tariff reform, civil service reform, support of tariff reform, civil service reform, economy and administrative reform and a sound financial system, and in opposition to subsidies and to improper federal interference with local affairs. The Farmers' Alliance did not enter into it, and the democrats have a better right to hope that the success they met with there will be permanent than they have to entertain the same expectation as to their successes in the west.

SEVENTY-FIVE ELECTORAL VOTES CLAIMED. Reckoning on the result of the last No five electoral votes east of Pennsylvania They carried Connecticut with its 6 electoral votes, Massachusetts with its 15 votes, New Hampshire with its 4 votes, New Jersey with its 10 votes, New York with 36 votes and Rhode its 10 votes, New York with 36 votes and Rhode Island with 4 votes.

Where can the democrats get seventy-five votes in the electoral college from the west? Where in the west can they be any more sure of any votes in the electoral college than they are of those in the east? About the only western state of all those in which the republicans suffered reverses in which the democrate had a clear victory free from the entanglement with the Farmers' Allience was Wisconsin. THE SOUTH CAN'T REJECT RIM.

If Mr. Cleveland goes to the south with the seventy-five eastern votes at his back in the convention, and the possibility of these votes in the electoral college, the south is in no posi-tion to reject him because of his views on the silver question. One of their erators once said in the House that the south could live under free trade or protection; under a gold policy or a silver; but could not live under negro domina-tion and republican rule. The south will hardly

It is clear that Mr. Cleveland's policy is to secure what strength for his party he can in the east, and then to rely (the leaders of both being opposed to free coinage) on the starting of a third party movement in the west, where the sentiment is strongly for free coinage, such a movement being to the detriment of the republicans. It is very doubtful whether the democrats could carry any of the usually republican states of the west, but if a third party springs up in these states and takes votes from the republican strongholds it will benefit the democrats. It might result in throwing the election into the House, where the democrats would have it. would have it.

risen months and thirteen days.

Dearest Richard, can we let thee
Leave us here in our despair?
God in heaven grant us patience.
For it is so hard to bear.
Good-bye, baby. God will take you
To that heavenly land above,
Where no sorrow will distress you.

Where all is joy and peace and love
